SUBJECT: Supplement to DuPont Cre-Lox License

On December 16, 1998, OTT issued Operating Guidance Memo 98-05 (<http://patron.ucop.edu/ottmemos/docs/ott98-05.html>) regarding the University of California's non-commercial research license agreement from DuPont Pharmaceuticals Company to practice the Cre-lox technology (License Agreement). On June 7, 2001, Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (BMS) and E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Company entered into a purchase agreement whereby BMS acquired stock and assets in DuPont Pharmaceuticals Company. As a result of this transaction, Bristol-Myers Squibb Pharma Company is the successor in interest to the University's non-commercial research license agreement to practice the Cre-lox technology executed with DuPont Pharmaceuticals Company on December 9, 1998. Other than the substitution of Bristol-Myers Squibb Company for DuPont Pharmaceuticals Company, all other terms and conditions of the License Agreement remain the same, including restrictions on the use and transfer of Cre-lox materials acquired or made by the University and the University's obligation to provide such materials to BMS at their request.

Please note that any future notices permitted or required under the License Agreement are to be sent to:
